

100 Things Mets Fans Should Know & Do Before They Die: The Ultimate Bucket List for New York Mets Die-Hards

As a lifelong Mets fan, I've had the privilege of witnessing some of the most iconic moments in team history. From the Miracle Mets of 1969 to the Subway Series of 2000, there have been plenty of ups and downs along the way. But one thing that has never wavered is my love for this team.

In honor of my fandom, I've compiled a list of 100 things that every Mets fan should know and do before they die. From visiting Citi Field to meeting Mr. Met, this bucket list has something for every fan of the orange and blue.

1. Attend a game at Citi Field

There's nothing quite like the atmosphere at a Mets game at Citi Field. The roar of the crowd, the smell of the popcorn, and the excitement of watching your team take the field is an experience that every Mets fan should have.

2. Visit the Mets Hall of Fame and Museum

Located at Citi Field, the Mets Hall of Fame and Museum is a must-see for any fan of the team. You'll find exhibits on all of the Mets' greatest players, as well as artifacts from the team's rich history.

3. Meet Mr. Met

Mr. Met is the official mascot of the Mets, and he's one of the most beloved mascots in all of baseball. If you're lucky, you'll get the chance to meet Mr. Met at a game or at one of the team's many events.

4. Sing "Meet the Mets"

"Meet the Mets" is the Mets' iconic theme song, and it's a must-sing for any fan of the team. Whether you're at a game or just hanging out with friends, belting out the lyrics to "Meet the Mets" is a great way to show your team spirit.

5. Watch a game from the Jackie Robinson Rotunda

The Jackie Robinson Rotunda is a special section of Citi Field that offers stunning views of the game. It's the perfect place to take in a game with friends or family.

6. Eat a Shake Shack burger

Shake Shack is a New York City institution, and their burgers are the perfect ballpark food. If you're at a Mets game, be sure to grab a Shake Shack burger and enjoy it while you watch the game.

7. Visit the 7 Line Army

The 7 Line Army is a group of Mets fans who are known for their passionate support of the team. They're always up for a good time, and they're always ready to cheer on the Mets.

8. Attend a MetsFest

MetsFest is the Mets' annual fan festival, and it's a great opportunity to meet players, get autographs, and learn more about the team. MetsFest is usually held in January or February.

9. Go to a game with a friend who's a fan of another team

There's nothing quite like the friendly rivalry between Mets fans and fans of other teams. If you have a friend who's a fan of another team, go to a game with them and enjoy the banter.

10. Watch a Mets game on TV with your family

Watching a Mets game on TV with your family is a great way to bond and share your love of the team. Whether you're cheering on the Mets together or just enjoying the game, it's a special experience.

These are just a few of the many things that every Mets fan should know and do before they die. If you're a true Mets fan, then you'll want to check off as many of these items as possible.
